Minor Regulations - 2021-2022

1. Name minor: China and the World Economy

2. English name: China and the World Economy

3. Content of minor:
This Minor offers a political and economic analysis of contemporary China with a particular focus on the extraordinary 'growth story' of China in recent decades. In addition, the Minor includes a practical research component in which students will work on actual business cases in China with a view to offering hands-on skills for doing business in China.
The theoretical part of the Minor consists of modules about the historical, political and economic context of contemporary China. The practical part involves a supervised research project about the Chinese business environment.

On completing this Minor, students will achieve Programme Learning Outcomes (PLOs) related to competencies such as International Business Skills; Intercultural Proficiency; Finance and Economics; Practical Business Research Methods. The learning goals of the Minor relate primarily to a deeper understanding of the world economy with a focus on China as well as practical skills for students wishing to do business with and/or in China.
